Mind-Body-Spirit

The following is an excerpt from Chapter 16 of "Ask and It Is Given", a book written by Esther and Jerry Hicks on the teachings of Abraham.

You Are Co-creating Within a Magnificently Diverse Universe

If you have the ability to imagine it, or even to think about it, this Universe has the ability and the resources to deliver it fully unto you, for this Universe is like a well-stocked kitchen with every ingredient imaginable at your disposal. And within every particle of this Universe is that which is wanted and the lack of it. This perspective of abundance, and the lack of it, is the environment in which focus is possible-and focus activates the Law of Attraction.

If you do not have the ability to know what you do want, you will not have the ability to know what you do not want. And without the ability to know what you do not want, you could not know what you do want. And so, it is through your exposure to life experience that your natural preferences are born. In fact, these preferences are exuding from you in all moments of every day, at many levels of your Being. Even the cells of your well-tended-to body are having their own experience and are emanating their own preferences-and every preference is recognized by Source and immediately answered, with no exceptions.

Unwanted Must Be Allowed, for Wanted to Be Received

Sometimes our physical friends express their desire for a less diverse Universe. They long for a place where there are not so many unwanted things, a place where more things are exactly as they prefer them to be. And we always explain that you did not come forth into this physical experience wanting to take all of the experiences that exist and whittle them down to a handful of good ideas upon which all of you agree, for that would lead to endedness, which cannot be. This is an expanding Universe, and all things must be allowed. In other words, for you to understand and experience what you desire, you must understand that which you do not desire, for, in order to be able to choose and focus, both must be present and understood.

You Did Not Come to Fix a Broken World

As Non-Physical Source Energy expressing through your physical experience, your physical experience is truly the Leading Edge of thought. And as you are fine-tuning your creative experience, you are taking thought beyond that which it has ever been before. As you enthusiastically made the decision to come into this physical body and create in this way, you understood, from your Non-Physical vantage point, that this physical world was not broken and in need of repair and you did not come forth to fix it.

You saw this physical world as a creative environment in which you, and everyone else, could express yourselves creatively and you did not come forth to try to get others to stop doing what they are doing and do something else. You came forth understanding the value in the contrast, and the balance in the variety.

Every physical Being on your planet is your partner in co-creation, and if you would accept that and appreciate the diversity of beliefs and desires-all of you would have more expansive, satisfying, and fulfilling experiences.

Abraham-Hicks

Esther Hicks is an inspirational speaker who dialogs with a group of spiritual teachers who call themselves Abraham. The Abraham teachings affirm our well-being and help us to recognize the power of joy in achieving all that is desired in life. For additional information please visit <http://www.abraham-hicks.com>

You ask through your attention, through your wanting, through your desire—that is the asking; whether you desire it to happen, or you desire it not to happen, you are asking... You do not have to use your words. You just have to feel it in your being; I desire this. I adore this. I appreciate this, and so on. That desire is the beginning of all attraction. [A. Hicks]

One of my biggest lessons came about many years ago while I was standing at the kitchen sink doing the dishes and feeling rather grumpy about it. I had been working full time in middle management plus being the best mom I could be and I often felt on the verge of burnout. Hours of sleep were shortened as there was so much to do and I had to be sharp during the day. I felt stress building from all directions and on this particular day, I felt that life was unfair. I felt grumpy. I felt unappreciated and hard done by. I could not do everything. I could not please everyone. I just couldn't do it anymore.

Grumbling to myself, I suddenly had a new thought: who was I doing this for? I had never asked myself this question before. Slowly I came to the realization that all the chores that I resented so much I was actually doing for my daughter. Would I have it any other way? Would I want some stranger preparing her food, making sure her clothes were clean and her room was nice? Would it make me feel better if tomorrow something happened to me and I could no longer do these mundane things? Then how would I feel?

I imagined myself kicking back with a good book, watching a movie ... doing whatever ... but I would not be able to wash these dishes for my family: my family, the people I loved. Something so simple yet I would not be able to do it. In that moment I suddenly felt enormous gratitude for my health, my life and for the privilege of being able to serve my family. What could ever be more important than helping the people I love?

Things changed after that. I never felt annoyed about dishes or other chores. Everything changed because I had changed. It took me a long time to see that I was actually here to help the people I love. Mother Teresa knew this and I was only then starting to realize it. She loved everyone and she said:

People are unreasonable, illogical, and self-centered.

Love them anyway.

If you are kind, people may accuse you of selfish ulterior motives.

Be kind anyway.

If you are successful, you will win some false friends and true enemies.

Succeed anyway.

The good you do today will be forgotten tomorrow.

Be good anyway.

Honesty and frankness will make you vulnerable.

Be honest and frank anyway.

What you spend years building may be destroyed overnight.

Build anyway.

People need help, but may attack you if you try to help them.

Help them anyway.

In the final analysis, it is between you and God.

It was never between you and them anyway.

It took me a long time to burst out of my bubble of self-absorption and see people, really see them, and connect with them. And it took me a long time to really see myself and feel gratitude for my health, my temple. Psychologists sometimes say the most important relationship you can have is with yourself.

These are no longer just words to me. I have found a new recognition and appreciation for others and in so doing found a new relationship with myself. I am a part of everything. I am a part of the big plan. I have purpose and I have value.

I see you. And now I see myself.

Back to Basics: The Seven Principles of Spiritualism

Spiritualists are not tied to a creed or dogma. They accept seven basic principles, which are based on inspiration from discarnate spirits. These act as guidelines for the development of a personal philosophy of how to live one's life. In each of the next 7 newsletters, we will focus on a general understanding built up by Spiritualists of what each of these principles mean.

1. THE FATHERHOOD OF GOD

Spiritualists recognise that there is a creative force in the universe, and that force, or 'energy', or 'Intelligence', is an all knowing, ever present creative 'consciousness' that not only brought the whole universe into existence, and also life itself in its many forms, but also continues to actively create and interact with the whole of the creation. The 'God' of the first Principle of Spiritualism is 'The Creative Force', the 'Life Force', the 'Great Spirit', the 'Divine Consciousness', or 'The All that Is', and not the God of the Christian's, reduced to a nebulous figurehead sitting on a throne meting out punishment for wrongdoing, or rewards for 'worshiping' in 'his' name. The 'God' perceived by Spiritualists "is not the limited Deity of the Judeo-Christian world, endowed with both human virtues and vices.....the Spiritualist God is a more abstract idea, embodying all the creative and positive attributes, yet possessing none of the vices and negativity attributable to Mankind. Each and every individual is united to this Deity by dis-severable ties: bonds inherent in his or her very existence. God is Divine Love!"⁴.

The Spiritualist 'God' is infinite Power, and infinite Love. This 'God' is a source of hope, encouragement, love and support, constantly available to each and every one of us. It is a God of infinite Wisdom that will never reject us, who are a part of 'its' creation. A 'God' who, in creating all that exists, or will ever exist, imbrued all things with a part of its Divine Consciousness. Every person, no matter what their faith or religion may be, is a part of 'God's' creation, and therefore holds within their very being a part, or a 'spark' of the Divine.

Spiritualists believe that we all: Muslim; Jew; Catholic; Protestant; Baptist; Mormon; Wiccan; Pagan; Atheist, Spiritualist, and so on, are part of 'God's' creation and hold within their being this 'Divine Spark' of God. We believe that "we all follow our own path at our own pace, discovering the 'God' within and bringing us a greater knowledge of this Divine source".⁵.

For Spiritualists, our ideal of God is as the Supreme Mind or Consciousness beyond the Universal Plan. "We conceive God as Supreme Mind and the infinite source of life, love, wisdom and power manifesting through Natural Law".⁷ Spiritualism is "confident in claiming the existence and presence of a Divine order and the working outwards of a Divine Power which dwells in all things. The life of animals and plants, the growth of flowers, and, in fact, existence and development of any kind would be impossible without the presence of this latent power".⁸.

It becomes clear, having examined the views of a broad range of Spiritualist writers, past and present, that the 'God' of which we speak is neither male nor female; the Spiritualist God IS the creative intelligence behind all creation. It is the 'Infinite Power' or 'Force' that gives rise to all life, all existence. We each hold within our being, as creatures of God's creation, an infinitesimal part of God which drives us to become aware of, and express the divinity within, in all aspects of our lives. That all people, and all living things, including the Earth and the Universe, are a part of God and 'its' creation we should honour and respect the divine aspect in all things, and in so doing will honour the 'father' who created all things.

Understanding the first principle, 'The fatherhood of God' in this way allows the Spiritualist in the 21st Century to still find meaning and guidance in its words. God, the Creator, the Infinite Intelligence or Mind, or whatever other phrase might be called upon, is an ever present Presence' in our lives.

As we live our earthly lives, as we strive to progress toward a greater understanding of 'God' and 'its' creation, we become aware "that life and progress stem from within, dependent on this power source", and "we conceive God as being in the highest sense Our Father and ourselves as units of His Being and members of His Family".⁹ We might choose, in these modern times to say Father/Mother God to convey that what we have in mind is not a paternalistic figure; we might be inclined to describe God as the Great Spirit, Loving and Eternal Father or Divine Creator, in order to reflect our changing and ever growing awareness of this Infinite Source of all things, but inherent in all these words is a conviction that there is a 'Supreme Being', and that Supreme being 'guides' us and our journey, through this experience we call Life.
